MYSTER EDDITTER:—Inn my last too yu, sum munth ago or morren that, I prumised if enny thing tuk plase wurthi of note I wood give my ideas fur the benerfit of the ignerint publik. Sumthin has takin plase. A reverloo-shun has taken place—men left thair bisness pershuits too give pleshure her shair of thair shorts and axshuns. The lawyar has left his musti books and his unfortinate kliants. The marchant his marchandize; the groser his groseries; the klark his ink stan and akounts; the printer his devil and deviltries; the musishin his do, re, ma, fa, sas; the dintist the jaws of his sufferin feller humans; the kar man his kans and kole dirt; the picter man his niggortives and koppies; the templar his kold watter untasted, all is kommoshun. And fur what? Kum with me gentile reeder, yondar goes a crowd, we will foller em, they konverse agerly, thai muve thair hans wiolent, kum and see. Low thai leave the town, the last brik house has wanished, thai are on a board walk; they are on a green fiel of emerald green, what hes led to this greenness? See evri man has hung his koat and west on the groun, to men are sayin, "Ile take Bilkins," "Ile take Wilkins," "I want Jones," "I want Jenkins," kum here Tumpkins," "this wai Bliuken," and so on til they hev too rounds. Is thair anuther invashun? Hev the wiolent Rebbils broke luse agin? Hev the Finnegins rased thair green flag, and air mustrin their green follerers? No sir. This air pleasure, this air our nashnul game, this air Baste Ball.

Wun feller taiks a spoiled brum stik and stans near an iron kittle kover.—Anuther feller with floin loks, thorws a bawl at him with wiolence; he dont like it, and hits it with his stik. He is goin to run to keep that feller frum throwin that bawl at him agin But wute. Not so fast, my fren. "Fowl," sais a feller with a primmer in his hand. Now thinks I, ole feller, yer better not pitch that bawl at that man agin. Immagine my surprise; that poor cus taiks his brum agin, lookin warm and savage; agin the bawl is throne at his hed, he dodges, and pokes her hard with his stik. Orf she goes up inter the air, down she kums; a man rushes at it with his hands and mouth open; thinks I which of them things does he xpect to ketch it in—not with neither, he uses his nose, and sets down on his back to see wair its agoin to lite. Anouther feller goes with a run fur it and pitches it back to the man what pitches it at folks.—Inn the meantyme the feller what did bit it has been agoin like mad. Lord! how he runs; sum of his family is tuk sik thats sertin. "Go to that third beast," says a feller thai kall Captin. In vain I looked fur a beaste; thair wair nun in wiew; that feller wair pussiled too, cos arter runnin a spel, he stopt short, a breathin hard and lookin all round. That's a humbug, no fli cud sustain that bawl, thair nun round cot on flys—No sir, it wair caut in the air. No fli bout that. Then nuther feller tuk holt, three times he bangged at it, when he went orf like a rockit; like a werry laim rockit, holdin wun leg strate, and makin awl wurk fur the uther. Well, they put three fellers out. I don't no how, (the feller with the primmir does,) but thai put em; then the uther fellers cum in and did like the fellers what was out: same thing ovir.

THE following toast was given at a printers' dinner out West: "George Woodcock—The * of his profession, the type of honesty, the ! of all; and although the ☞ of death has put a . to his existence, every § of his life was without a ‖."

Shoemaker, Stick to Your Last.

A STORY WITH A MORAL, FROM VON HORN.

Who of us kind readers, has not heard and probably made use of the quaint motto constituting our caption, when any one was known to have attempted the performance of that which he was plainly unfitted by natural talent or acquired skill? There is a certain tact required in every undertaking, trade or profession, natural or acquired; without which the man who attempts the performance of the duties of either, however apparently insignificant, will invariably fail in the proper accomplishment thereof. The truth of this declaration was once most amusingly established in the case of a royal personage who possessed a kindly disposition towards, and was, in turn, highly esteemed and much beloved by all his subjects, viz: Maximilian Joseph, King of Bavaria, the grandsire of the present ruler of that Kingdom. During the summer of a certain year of his reign he sat one day in a plain, undistinguishable dress, in the royal garden, reading a book. The heat was so great, and such perfect quiet rested upon the place that the King became drowsy and his eyes showed signs of a desire to sleep. He laid his book on the bench and fell into a comfortable sleep. The snooze did not continue very long, however, and waking up, he started upon a short walk for exercise. The book, in the meantime, lay upon the bench, having been forgotten by the King. Farther and farther continued the pleasure walk, until Royal Palace and garden were left quite in the rear, and the King strode out upon the beautiful green plats of grass, which extended hither and thither towards the seashore.

M. Joseph now remembered the book he had left upon the bench in the park. Should any one pass by that spot, he felt convinced the book would disappear, and yet he was very loth to part with it. Neither did he desire to return to the Castle by the way he came, but intended to go home by extending his walk along the coast. He therefore looked all around and about himself to find some one whom he might send for the book, upon pointing out the exact spot where he had left it. Far and wide, however, the King could behold no human being except a young lad, who was herding a large flock of geese.

The King now bent his steps towards the boy and said:

"See here, youngster, wouldn't you go to a certain place, which I will paint out to you, and bring me a book, you shall have two 'Zwanzigers' (German coin) for the job?"

The lad who did not know the King, looked unbelievingly at the corpulent person before him. Two Zwansigers for such a trifling errand! the thing seemed so much like a hoax to the boy.

"I'm no fool, said the youngster, turning away.

"What makes you think I take you to be a fool?" said the King, smiling; and who at once seemed interested in the fresh looking, bold little fellow, perceiving plainly that the boy did not know who he was.

"Because you offer such a sum of money for such a trifling job," replied the lad. "Money is not made so easily!"

"I see, now, that you are really a simpleton!" said the King, laughing. "Why do you not believe me?"

"Those in there, said the boy, pointing to the distant Castle, "like to make a fool of such as I am, and, in all likelihood, you are also one of them!"

"And suppose I should be," said the King. "Here's your money in advance! Now go and bring me the book."

The lad's eyes glistened, as he beheld the money, and even held it in his own hand; knowing, as he did, that for very little more than that sum he watched the farmer's geese a whole year. He hesitated.

"Well," said the King, "why don't you go?"

The lad pushed his cap to one side, and scratching behind his ear, said, "I would most cheerfully do it but I dare not! If the farmers heard that I had left the destructive geese, they would discharge me, and then I would have no way to earn my bread any longer."

"Foolish fellow!" said the King, I will mind the geese till you return."

"You" cried the boy, sarcastically, looking rather surprised at the King; "You would make a nice sort of a goose-herd! You are too fat and stiff; Fine work you would make for me!—The geese would all break loose and scatter over the fine fertile meadows; and I would be compelled to pay more than a year's wages for the damage. Do you see that lordly looking old planter, with the black head and wings. He is a deserter, a villanious fowl, a real scoundrel, he is of royal stock, that is all good for nothing, he would make a pretty mess for me; it won't do!"

The King was ready to burst with laughter, but repressing his risibility with all force, he said, "why should I not be able for a short time, to keep a flock of geese in order, whilst I do the same daily with many people?"

"You!" inquired the lad, again eying the King from head to foot. "Well, they must be a set of real blockheads! You are a school-master probably.—I tell you, such a set of boys are more easily governed than a flock of geese."

"That may be so," said the King; but be short! Will you go for the book?"

"I would—but—"

"I'll stand good for all, and will pay the damage, if the landguard come," said the King.

This seemed to satisfy the lad, and he charged the King to keep his eye, particularly, upon that royal looking old gander; for he was always ready to break loose, and induce the whole flock to follow. The King promised, and taking the long lash from the boy's hand, saw the latter start for the book. But he had not gone far, when he again turned back and came to the King.

"What now?" said the king.

"Crack the whip," said the boy. The King made the motion, but there was no crack!

"I just thought as much," cried the boy. "He pretends to be a schoolmaster, and even a goose-herd, and can't as much crack with a lash." He now tore the lash from the King's hand and instructed him how to crack. The King could scarcely hold in any longer, but, yet, made every effort to learn from the lad, the art of cracking the lash; and having measurably succeeded in bringing forth the proper sound, the boy once more charged him to be very careful in watching the geese, and again started for the book. The King now gave full vent to his laughing mood, and enjoyed himself amusingly.

It soon appeared, however, as if the geese really knew that their usual watchful commander had given the reins into other hands. The old gander, to which the boy had given the name of "Barn-yard Lord," stretched up his long neck, looked all about; blew his shrill trumpet twice or thrice, and, immediately, as if a whirlwind had seized a pile feathers, all the geese flapped their wings, sounded a shrill note, and before the King knew what he was about, they were all flying as a rushing storm to the two and thirty winds of heaven, over and upon the nice fat meadows along the sea.

The King called after them in vain. He tried to crack the lash, but could produce but a feeble sound. He ran hither and thither, but all in vain. With the sweat pouring over his face, he sat down upon the trunk of a tree, the seat of the young lad, and laughing heartly, he left the geese to go where they pleased. "The lad is verily right," said the King to himself, "in saying that it is easier to rule over a million of people than a flock of geese. And that scoundrel of a gander is the cause of all this trouble."

The lad had in the meantime, gone according to direction, found the book, and was returning in great glee. As he approached the King, looking for his flock, he dropped the book to the ground, through sheer fright, and stared in amazement upon the damage done through the inefficiency of his royal substitute.

"There it is!" said he, almost crying with rage and anxiety. "Did I not tell you, you knew nothing? What is now to be done? I can't bring them together again alone! I hope you will help me now."

He instructed the King how to stand, and how to raise and let fall his out stretched arms, and how to halloa, and then went himself to gather the most distant of the scattered flock. The King did all he could, and after considerable laborious effort, the flock of geese was again united.

The lad now abused the King roundly, because he had so illy performed his promise, and concluded thus, "in all my life shall no such fellow get my lash from me again, and deceive me with two "Zwanziger," to forsake my flock. Not even to the King would I entrust them."

"You are right there, my lad," said the King; bursting forth with a fresh fit of laughter, "he knows just about as much of the matter as I.

"Pshaw, nonsense!" says the boy, looking angrily at the King.

"Why my little man; I am the King."

"You? Make a fool believe that, not me," cried the lad. "Go, get your book and get yourself back to your house."

The King quietly went for his book, and handing the boy four additional "Zwanzigers," said: Here, my lad, take these, and do not be angry with me. I'll give you my word, that I will no more undertake to watch a flock of geese."

The boy took the money; thanked the Kindly, and said, "whoever you may be, a very kind gentleman you are; but for a goose-herd you will never do. The proverb stands true: "Shoemaker, stick to your last!"

A BEAUTIFUL SENTIMENT.—Shortly before the departure of the lamented Heber for India, he preached a sermon which contained this beautiful sentiment:

"Life bears us on like the stream of a mighty river. Our boat at first glides down the narrow channel—through the playful murmurings of the little brook and the windings of its grassy borders. The trees shed their blossoms over our young heads; the flowers seem to offer themselves to the young hands, we are happy in hope, and grasp eagerly at the beauty around us—but the stream hurries on, and still our hands are empty. Our course in youth, and manhood is along a wilder and deeper flood, amid objects more striking and magnificent. We are animated at the moving pictures and enjoyments and industry around us; we are excited at some short lived disappointment. The streams bear us on, and out joys and griefs are alike left behind us. We may be shipwrecked, but we cannot be delayed; whether rough or smooth, the river hastens to its home, till the roar of the ocean is in our ears, and the tossing of the waves beneath our feet, and the floods are lifted up around us, and we take our leave of earth and its inhabitants, until of our future voyage there is no witness save the Infinite and Eternal."

The Art of Printing.

BY BAYARD TAYLOR.

Perhaps there is no department of enterprise whose details are less understood by intelligent people than the "art preservative"—the achievement of types.

Every day, their life long they are accustomed to read the newspaper, to find fault with its statements, its arrangement, its looks; to plume themselves upon the discovery of some roguish and acrobatic type that gets into a frolic, and stands upon its head; or of some waste letter or two in it; but of the process by which the newspaper is made, of the myriads of motions and thousands of pieces necessary to its composition, they know little and think less.

They imagine they discourse of wonder, indeed, when they speak of the fair white carpet, woven for thought to walk on—of the rags that fluttered upon the back of the beggar yesterday.

But there is something more wonderful still. When we look at the hundred and fifty-two little boxes, somewhat shaded with the touch of the fingers, that compose the printers' "case"—noiseless, except the clicking of the types, as one by one they take their places in the growing line—we think we have found the marvel of the art.

We think how many fancies in fragments there are in the boxes, how many atoms of poetry and excellence the printer can make here and there, if he only had a little chart to work—how many facts in a small "handful"—how much truth in chaos.

Now he picks up the scattered elements, until he holds in his hand a stanza of "Gary's Elegy," or a monody upon Grimes "all buttoned up before," and now "Paradise Lost;" he arrays a bride in "small caps," and a sonnet in "nonpareil;" he announces that the languishing, "live," in one sentence—transposes the words, and deplores the days that are few and "evil," in the next.

A poor jest tricks its way slowly into the printer's hand like a clock just running down, and a strain of eloquence marches into line letter by letter. We fancy we can tell the difference by hearing of the ear, but perhaps not.

The types that told a wedding yesterday announce a burial to-morrow—perhaps the self-same letters.

They are the elements to make a world of—these types are a world with something in it as beautiful as spring, as rich as summer, and as grand as autumn flowers that frost cannot wilt—fruit that shall ripen for all time.

The newspaper has become the log book of the age; it tells at what rate the world is running; we cannot tell our reckoning without it.

True, the green grocer may bundle up a pound of candles in our last expressed thoughts, but it is only coming to base uses, and that is done times innumerable.

We console ourselves by thinking that one can make of that newspaper what he cannot make of living oaks—a bridge for time; that he can fling it over the chasm of the dead years, and walk safely back upon the shadowy sea into the fair Past. The singer shall not end his song, nor the true soul be eloquent no more.

The realm of the Press is enchanted ground. Sometimes the editor has the happiness of knowing that he has defended the right, exposed the wrong, protected the weak; that he had given utterence to a sentiment that had cheered somebody's solitary hour, made somebody happier, kindled a smile upon a sad face, or hope in a heavy heart.

He may meet with that sentiment many years after it may have lost all charm of its paternity, but he feels affection for it. He welcomes it as a long absent child. He reads it as if for the first time, and wonders if, indeed, he wrote it, for he has changed since then. Perhaps he could not give utterance to the sentiment now—perhaps he would not if he could.

It seems like the voice of his former self calling to its parents, and there is a something mournful in its tone. He begins to think—he remembers why he wrote it, where were his readers then, and whither they have gone—what he was then, and how much he has changed. So he muses, until he finds himself wondering if that thought of his will continue to float after he is dead, and whether he is really looking on something that will survive him.—And then comes the sweet consciousness that there is nothing in the sentence that he could wish unwritten—that is a better part of him—a shred from the garment of immortality he shall leave behind him when he joins the "innumerable caravan," and takes his place in the silent halls of death.

☞ The following advertisement, we clip from a daily paper, exhibits a good specimen of the arrangement of words;—

"Lost! A small lady's watch with a white face: also two ivory ladies' work boxes. A mahogony gentleman's dressing case, and a small pony, belonging to a young lady with one eye.

☞ Prentice, of the Louisville Journal, makes a wicked lunge at the very underpinning of society. He says "tilting hoops enable the common people to see a great deal more of good society than they ever saw before."

☞ A learned coronor being asked how he accounted for the great mortality, exclaimed:

"I cannot tell; people seem to die this year that never died bespre."

In The Mind.

An old man was shaving himself one day before the fire, but suddenly exclaimed in a great rage to the maid servant: "I can't shave without a glass! why is it not here." "Oh!" said she, "I have not placed it there for many weeks, as you seemed to get along quite as well without it." The crusty old bachelor (of course he was an old bachlor, or he would not have been so crotchety and crusty) had, for the first time, observed that there was no glass there and his inability to shave without one, was "in the mind" only it way imaginary.

A Dutch farmer who measured a yard through, was one day working in the harvest field with his little son, and was bitten by a snake. He was horror struck. When he recovered himself a little he snatched up his outer clothing, and made tracks for home, at the same time busying himself in putting on his vest; but it would not go on. He looked at his arm, and it seemed to be double its natural size; but tugging at it with greater desperation, he finally got both arms in. But his blood fairly froze in his veins when he discovered it wouldn't meet by about a foot. By this time he had reached his house, and throwing himself on the bed, exclaimed in an agony of terror: "O mine frow! I'm snake bite! I'm killed! O mine Cot!" But his little bit of a wife, standing a kimbo in the middle of the floor, burst into a fit of laughter to uncontrolable that she was likely to suffocate, and thus beat her husband in dying. The poor man's in his alarm, had endeavored to put on his little boy's vest, and was not swollen at all, except "in the mind."

Many a mother feels fretted and jaded and worn out with the cares of housekeeping, and is almost sick. But at the moment a welcome visitor comes in full of life and cordiality and cheerfulness, and in less than five minutes that mother is a different woman; the sky has cleared; the face is lighted up with smiles; and she feels as well as she ever did in her life. Her discouragement, her almost sickness was not "in the mind," it was a reality, but the excitement of conversation drove out the wearying blood, which was oppressing the heart, and made it fairly tingle to the finger points. Mem. Ladies! when you go a visiting, carry smiles and gladness and a joyous nature and a kind heart with you, and you will do more good than a dozen doctors. Most persons have a variety of uncomfortable feelings at times, but they disappear on some exciting occurrence, not because they are merely "in the mind," only imaginary, but because the excited heart wakes up to a new propulsive power, and drives forward the stagnating blood from points where its sluggishness was producing oppression, or actual pain. Mem. 2. For all, when you are grumpy, bounce up, go ahead, and do something.—[Dr. Hall.

Put a Good Face Upon It.

If you wish to succeed in life, if you wish to find friends, if you wish your relatives or associates to enjoy your company, wear a cheerful face; everybody dislikes and shuns a sad one, if it is habitually sad, Everybody but God grows weary of being reminded of sorrow, and the heart that is always full of bitter waters will be left alone. Pretend to be happy if you can do no more. Coax sunbeams to your eyes, smiles to your lips. Speak hopeful, yea words as often as you can; make fun if you never feel it. Get the name of being cheerful, and it will be as incense to you. Whenever the glad face goes it is welcome; whatever the laughing lips ask is apt to be granted. If you are starving for either food for body or spirit it is better to laugh than to cry as you tell the tale. There was one once who, with a face like a tombstone, told and told her wants, and met with repulse after repulse from those whose faces fell at sight of her; but at last, laughing in strange mirth at her own misery, she told it once again.—Tears started into the eyes of her hearers, and instant relief was given. Men are impatient of tears, and women are weary of them. Don't give way to them, no matter what the case may be, get back the smiles as quickly as you can. Let them be but "hollow smiles," if that's the best you can do. Keep at that. By and by you will do better. Laugh to keep from crying.—Never give up to gloom; it is a wrong to those about you. Sad faces add to the weight of trouble that life lays upon every heart. Woe to us it we cannot look about us and see bravely cheerful faces to encourage our hearts. Let us be careful that each one of us has one of these faces. A man who carries a glad face does an amount of good in the world impossible to compute, even if he be too poor to give one cent in charity, and a man whose face is generally sad does, every day of his life, more harm than can be reckoned. This is a hard world, full of all manner of troubles; but every one of them can, for much of the time, be wrestled out of sight; and every living man and woman, as soon as the first distress is a little past, at the very least, assume cheerfulness. This is decent. More than this, 'tis duty. Nobody has any right to go about a perpetual dampener of enjoyment. And no one has just reason for habitual sadness till he has lost his soul.

A Capital Story.

Some years since, an eccentric old genius, named Barnes, was employed by a farmer living in a town some six or seven miles westerly from the Penobscot river, Maine, to dig a well. The soil and substratum being mostly of sand, old Barnes having progressed downward about forty feet, found one morning upon going to work that the well had essentially caved in, and was full nearly to the top. So, having the desire which men have of knowing what will be said of them after they are dead, and no one being yet astir, he concealed himself in a rank growth of burdock by the side of a board fence near the mouth of the well, having first left his frock and hat on the windlass over the well. At length breakfast being ready, a boy was despatched to call him to his meal, when lo! and behold! it was seen that Barnes was buried in a grave unconsciously by his own hands. The alarm being given, and the family assembled it was decided to eat breakfast; and then to send for the coroner, the minister, and his wife and children. Such apathy did not flatter Barnes' self esteem a bit, but he waited patiently, determined to hear what would be said and see what was to be seen.

Presently all parties arrived and began "prospecting" the scene of the catastrophe, as people usually do in such cases. At length they drew together to exchange opinions as to what should be done. The minister at once gave his opinion that they had better level up the well and let Barnes remain; "for" said he, "he is now beyond the temptation of sin, and the day of judgment it will make no difference whether he is buried five feet under ground or fifty, for he is bound to come forth in either case." The coroner likewise agreed that it would be a needless expense to his family or to the town to disinter him when he was effectually buried, and therefore coincided with the minister.

His wife thought as he had left his hat and frock it was hardly worth while to dig him out for the rest of his clothes, and so it was decided to let him remain. But poor old Barnes, who had no breakfast, and was not at all pleased with the result of the inquest, lay quiet until the shades of evening stole over the landscape, when he departed to parts unknown. After remaining incognito for about three years, one morning he suddenly appeared (hatless and frockless as he went) at the door of the old farmer, for whom he had agreed to dig the unfortunate well. To say that an avalance of questions were rained upon him as to his mysterious re-appearance, etc., would convey but a feeble idea of the excitement which his bodily presence created.

But the old man bore it quietly, and at length informed them that on finding himself buried, he waited to be dug out again, until his patience was exhausted, when he set to work to dig himself out, and had only the day before succeeded, for, his ideas being very much confused, he had dug very much at random, and instead of coming directly to the surface, he came out in the town of Holden, six miles east of the Penobscot river.

No further explanations were asked for by those who were so distressed and sorrowful over his supposed final resting place.

CHARACTERISTICS OF WESTERN PEOPLE.—Western character, especially that in the Valley of the Mississippi, is the outgrowth of the circumstances surrounding it, including climate, soil, and the mingling of many nations. It is the development partly of the hard and stern conditions that come of settlement in a new country, and partly from the breaking away from the fixed and crystalized civilization of the East.

Out of these facts grow strong individualism, freedom, and self-reliance, and large and comprehensive views from which are eliminated the elements of narrow sectarinism, provincialism and the little prejudices that gather around an untraveled community. Hence the Western character develops freedom—takes in large calculations. A Western man thinks nothing of going one thousand or fifteen hundred miles—has no religious prejudices against Gentiles or Jews. The elements of various nationalities flow in together, and make up the community. He is educated to be self-hopeful, and protects himself. If a man steals his horse he mounts another, and traces the thief, and shoots him if he can. The extending prairies, the immense rivers, the mighty lakes, somehow seem to enlarge the Western man's conception of things. His big farm yields him thousands of bushels of grain. He may have twenty horses, an hundred mules, and a thousand head of cattle, grazing in his pastures, and five hundred hogs fattening in his fields. He reads the price current of Eastern papers, with full as much care as he does his Bible. He knows all that is going on—forms his own opinions, and is loud and bold in the expression of them. The irascible, reckless, mercurial daring which characizes Westesn men, and which was so illustrated in Sherman's army, is both the fruit of their education and the result of the climate. The Western man is as impulsive as the Southern. He calculates quickly, and acts on the spur of the moment. Practical in all things he sees the shortest cut always. Whatever he owns he is willing to sell, —whatever you own he is willing to buy. On a large trade he is as sharp as a Yankee, in a small one he takes no stock.

FOR GOVERNOR,

Maj. Gen. John W. Geary;

OF CUMBERLAND COUNTY.

Death of Gen. Lewis Cass.

DETROIT, June 17.— Gen. Lewis Cass died in this city at 4 o'clock this morning, aged 80 years.

"JOHNSON MEN."

We are anxious to know how many of the voters of the Union party of the county are "Johnson men." Will his friends give us their names by mail or otherwise. We want to know who have dared to think for themselves, and who are willing to "face the music."

Who are Traitors Now?

We publish below a specimen of Journal & American Copperheadism. During the war, editors and speakers who indulged in wholesale unjust denunciations of President Lincoln were denounced, and justly too, as traitors. But Robert McDivitt and many other unprincipled and unscrupulous politicians have forgotten what was copperheadism during the rebellion, and now take precisely the same position the leaders of the so-called Democratic party did then. It is no excuse for Robert to say he believes what he writes. He knows better. He knows that there is not a word of TRUTH in the article from the beginning to the end. He knows that there is no one act of President Johnson on record that would justify the assertion of such wholesale falsehoods. The secret of the Journal & American's opposition to President Johnson is in the fact that he was a true Democrat during the war—and is a true Democrat still—standing fair and square upon the platform of the great Union party that placed him and Mr. Lincoln in nomination. We give the article, disgusting as the falsehoods are, that our readers may know the true character of the Journal & American. Read the stuff—we copy from the last week's issue:

"MY POLICY."—The test of loyalty with the President is the support of what he is very vain in calling "my policy." This policy is nothing more than the surrender of the country to the scoundrels who headed and conducted the late rebellion. "My policy" demands that malignant traitors, with hands red and dripping with the blood of Union soldiers, shall be admitted to seats in Congress—that villains of this class shall have the positions of trust and profit at home and in foreign countries, and above all that no lawful penalty for the committal of treason shall be visited upon any traitor. This is "my policy," and but for the patriotism and firmness of Congress, this would to-day be so fully and fatally fastened upon the country that Jefferson Davis would be made President, Lee Secretary of War, and other rebels of like ilk, be raised to the other positions now filled by loyal men. Let this policy be rammed down Andy Johnson's throat."

A POLICY.—After six months contention the majority in Congress at last agreed upon "a policy" in the shape of an amendment to the Constitution. It is not what the extreme radicals wanted, but the President took a firm position against their measures, and the result is a more satisfactory and reasonable policy than would have been offered the country by Congress had he been under the influence of Stevens, Sumner & Co. "Universal amnesty and universal suffrage" was the platform Greeley, Forney, Stevens & Co., were in favor of, but the President and the people could not be persuaded to stand upon it. Stevens and his worshipers die hard. They will never forgive President Johnson for remaining true to the principles and platform of the party that elected him.

WHEN the President issued his proclamation against the Fenian raid on Canada, Forney said he did right. Now we see Forney is trying to soap the Fenians by sympathizing with them and finding fault with the President for interfering with their arrangements. It is votes Forney is after, but we think he will have a happy time converting the foreign vote over to his radical notions, universal negro suffrage, etc., etc. We certainly would have no objections if the whole foreign vote could be influenced to unite with the Union party, but that it should be cast to carry out the peculiar notions of the extreme radicals, we would most respectfully protest. The change would not pay the expenses.

THE President is being bitterly denounced by the Fenians and the Radicals because he authorized the arrest of all who should attempt a violation of the neutrality law. The President could do nothing else. He is required by his oath of office to do just what he has done, and if he had not interferred to prevent a violation of the law, he would have been denounced by his radical friends for neglect of duty. It is not possible just now for the President to please the soreheads.

WE wish it to be understood that we proscribe proscriptionists. For twenty years the Globe has been favored with the Mercantile Appraiser's advertisement. This year we have not received it. Robert McDivitt is the Appraiser. By whose authority does he act?

A PENNSYLVANIAN WANTED.—The Cleveland Herald gives the following, which we trust will reach the eye of some friend of the departed soldier referred to: "George Wilson, supposed to be a resident of Pennsylvania, was enlisted by Capt. Wm. Kenna, of Co. B, 8th Ohio Infantry, in June, 1861. Just before the battle of Gettysburg he gave the Captain a check for $60. During that memorable engagement Wilson was killed. The captain now living in this city, has the check, and says there is some back pay and bounty due the soldier. Wilson once informed a comrade, while on picket guard, that he was born in Pennsylvania; that he had been absent from home over six years, and that his parents did not know anything relative to his whereabouts. Captain Kenna is desirous of sending the check to his friends if they can be found."

ENGLISH PAUPERISM.—The reports of the Poor Law Board for England and Wales for the month of March show that 907,201 paupers were supported in those countries at the close of that month, and this is said to be a very gratifying statement, being over five per cent. less than at the end of the corresponding month of 1865, and nearly eight per cent. less than the number for the corresponding month of 1864. This does not represent the whole number of persons supported during the month, but the number who received aid upon the last day of the month, and it shows that one person out of every twenty-three of the population is regularly supported by the English and Welsh poor rates. A more striking commentary upon the labor systems of those countries cannot be found.

The reconstruction amendment to the Constitution passed the House on Wednesday last by a vote of 120 to 32. It passed just as it was returned from the Senate, and as published in our last issue. It will now be submitted to the Legislatures of the States for ratification.

GOLD UP.—Gold advanced nearly eleven per cent. in New York on Saturday. It was selling at $1.60. The certainty of a European war, and continued failures in England, produced a sudden and generally unexpected upward turn.

☞It is understood that Mr. Morrel of Johnstown, has secured the Conferees of the Union party of Blair county in his favor, for Congress.—Huntingdon and Mifflin have not yet appointed Conferees.

FROM EUROPE.

War now Considered Inevitable.

The London Times, of the 6th inst., announce the abandonment of the proposed conference. It says:

It is with the deepest regret that we announce that the hopes of settling by a Conference the disputes which now agitate Europe must be abandoned. The French Government has telegraphed to our own that in consequence of the persistence of Austria, in imposing conditions which would make the discussions nugatory, the conference will not be held. It would, indeed, be a mockery to call together the representatives of the great Powers on terms which would necessarily involve the immediate separation. We fear, then, that matters stand as they stood three weeks since, and that it now rests with the armed Powers to compose their disputes by negotiation between themselves, or to resort to the arbitrament of war.

This announcement by the Times was afterward confirmed from other sources, and the general feeling was that the last hope of peace had vanished.

A Paris telegram, of the 5th, says:

The French Government has sent a note to Vienna in reference to the reply given by Austria to the invitation for a Conference. The French Government regrets that this reply must be considered as a refusal to take part in the Conference, and, therefore, as frustrating the efforts for the preservation of peace.

England and Russia have declared through their representatives in Paris that, in their opinion, the reservation made by Austria in her reply to the invitation of the neutral Powers would prevent the Conference from having a useful result.

☞The Richmond Examiner says the rebellion broke down and the scattering among the dry bones took place. Rebel members of Congress had funny adventures to get out of the way. Mr. Hubert, of Texas, fell into the hands of a squad of Federal soldiers, who had heard him declare he was a member of Congress at a livery stable. They were afterwards laughed out of it by some freinds of Hubert, who declared he was bogus, and only attempting to pass himself off for a man of consequence. The soldiers thinking they were sold, let him go, and he lost no time in going. Several of the members passed themselves as paroled soldiers, and were transported as such without detection, on Government steamers to points near their homes. Of these were Mr. Perkins and Mr. Wigfall. The latter, in a disguise that precluded all suspicion, entered freely into conservation with the soldiers of the guard; and in the course of the conversation asked what they would do with old Wigfall if they were to catch him. "Oh, we would hang him, certain," was the reply. "And you would serve him right," replied Wigfall. "If I should be with you I have no doubt I should be pulling at the end of the rope myself!" The double entendre was not suspected, and its wit was therefore lost, but is worth producing now.

☞The best evidence that Johnson is right is the fact that the New York World now finds fault with him.

NEWS SUMMARY.

☞1,012 Southern churches were burned during the war.

☞The public debt has been decreased nearly twenty million dollars during last month.

☞It is expected that the sugar crop of 1866 will reach twelve thousand hogsheads.

☞Governor Curtin has appointed Charles R. Coburn, Superintendent of Common Schools for Pennsylvania.

☞A very patient New Yorker has been counting the different styles of hats that appear on Broadway, and reports the number at 175.

☞The brain of Probst was found to be below the average weight, weighing but thirty-six ounces. His heart weighed a little over nine ounces.

☞The rebel General J. B. Hood is earning a livelihood at New Orleans, at the head of a stock company for sweeping the streets.

☞A couple were married in Cairo last week with a ludicrous difference in age, the bride being 13 and the groom 91. The girl was rich, which makes the affair still more a matter of wonder.

☞Four large casks belonging to a large milk establishment in Boston, were recently examined and found to contain refined whiting, which, on being mixed with water, gave a very good imitation of milk.

☞Prof. W. Byrd Powell, who died in Covington, Ky., a few days ago, bequeathed his head to Mrs. F. H. Kinzie, of Cincinnati, to be used for scientific purposes. In accordance with this, a surgeon cut off the Professor's head, and it is now in the possession of the lady.

☞One Charles S. Dunlap got himself into jail the other day, at Zanesville, Ohio, for going through the country and poisoning the mouths of horses, then suddenly appearing as a "horse doctor," and offering to cure them for "so much." He ought to be made take a bit in his own mouth.

☞A discussion arose in a Jewish congregation in New York, a few days since, upon the keeping the pastor, when three of those opposed to him placed themselves in the pulpit, and as he entered they pushed him out and beat him severely. He recovered damages to the amount of $500.

☞Winona, Wisconsin, must be a nice place at the present time. Among the inducements for gentlemen to settle there, it is mentioned that "they can fish out of their garret windows, swim in their parlors, build skiffs on their roofs, practice rowing over their door yards, and keep ducks."

☞The little tax of one cent upon every box of matches netted the government $1,500,000 last year. According to that estimate 150,000,000 boxes or bunches of matches must have been used in this country during the year, or five bunches—equal to 500 matches—for every man, woman and child.

☞In Baltimore, last week an employee in the Sun building, after a violent coughing expelled from his lungs a brass headed nail, one inch in length, which he had accidentally swallowed over two years ago, and which had remained imbedded in the lungs all that time, a constant source of annoyance, bleeding and ill-health. The nail was much corroded.

☞The Nimrods of Freehold, Warren county, had a squirrel hunt last week. There were twenty-five gunners on each side, and they hunted a week. The week's shooting brought down 45 skunks, 760 wood-chucks, 105 crows, 346 black and grey squirrels, 2,360 red squirrels and chipmunks; making a total of 2,620. Didn't they make the fur fly?

☞The Union Base Ball Club, from the Agricultural College, challenged the Central, a new Bellefonte Club, and beat them the other day, which any old club ought to do with a new one, whereupon one of the College boys writes that "The Union nine of Agricultural College is open to all challenges from Pennsylvania." Here is an opportunity for some of our old clubs.

☞It is said that the interior of Pennsylvania shows the curious effect of the advance of civilization upon nature. The flora of the State has been found to have undergone remarkable changes, plants that were formerly rare being now quite abundant. This change is attributed in a great measure to the spread of railroads, and some botanists predict that the "foreign plants will ultimately supplant the natives."

☞A brutal murder has just been brought to light at Mt. Pleasant, Delaware. Andrew P Armstrong, a farmer, had been living unhappily with his wife, and on the 19th ultimo he cruelly murdered her by breaking her skull with an axe-handle. He secreted the body under the floor of a pig pen, and then inserted advertisements in the newspapers saying she had suddenly disappeared, and offering large rewards for any information leading to the discovery of her whereabouts.—"Murder will out;" and a day or two ago the body was discovered, and the guilty murderer was put under arrest.

☞A number of young men of Indianapolis have given the principal of the Baptist seminary in that city considerable trouble by persistently making love, orally and by letter, to the young ladies under his charge. The other day the principal learned that some of his pupils had packages of letters from young gentlemen of the city — tender epistles. Exasperated beyond endurance, he caused the young ladies to stand up before the entire school, and read the letters in full, with the names of the writers. There was a fluttering in the school.

A LARGE HOG.—The Rural World says: We recently saw at Belleville, Illinois, a hog weighing 1,120 pounds. It was two-and-a-half years old, seven feet long from the ears to the root of the tail, and four feet high. Its girth was seven feet five inches. Mr. Richardson, of Mascoutah, Illinois, raised the hog, thought it was brought from Kentucky when a pig. Its color is white and its general make and appearance would indicate that it was of the Chester White breed. Mr. Richardson sold the hog at eight cents per pound, thus bringing the snug sum of $89,60 for a single hog. The purchaser was exhibiting it in Belleville at ten cents a sight, and when the Bellevillians were through seeing it, he intended to slaughter it.

THE BALLOT.

Ought Deserters from the Army or Navy be Entitled to the Right of Suffrage?—The Men who stood to their Work in the Front of Battle should not have their Votes Neutralized by Skulkers.

At present, when there is so much excitement upon the question of allowing deserters to vote, and which has been receiving the attention of the Supreme Court, we have thought it proper to present the law of Congress on the subject, together with the act passed last winter by the Legislature, and which has been signed by Governor Curtin:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted, etc., That in all elections hereafter to be held in this Commonwealth, it shall be unlawful for the judge or inspectors of any such election to receive any ballot or ballots from any person or persons embraced in the provisions and subject to the disability imposed by said act of Congress, approved March third, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and it shall be unlawful for any such person to offer to vote any ballot or ballots.

SEC. 2. That if any such judge and inspectors of election, or any one of them, shall receive, or consent to receive, any such unlawful ballot or ballots from any such disqualified person, he or they so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof in any court of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth he shall, for each offence, be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, and to undergo an imprisonment in the jail of the proper county for not less than sixty days.

SEC. 3. That if any person deprived of citizenship, and disqualified as aforesaid, shall, at any election hereafter to be held in this Commonwealth, vote or tender to the officers thereof, and offer to vote a ballot or ballots, any person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, in any court of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth, shall, for each offence, be punished in like manner, as is provided in the preceding section of this act in the case of officers of election receiving such unlawful ballot or ballots.

SEC. 4. That if any person shall hereafter persuade or advise any person or persons, deprived of citizenship and disqualified as aforesaid, to offer any ballot or ballots to the officers of any election hereafter to be held in this Commonwealth, or shall persuade or advise any such officer to receive any ballot or ballots from any person deprived of citizenship, such person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof in any court of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth, shall be punished in like manner as is provided in the second section of this act, in the case of officers of such election receiving such unlawful ballot or ballots.

SEC. 5. That it shall be the duty of the Adjutant General of this Commonwealth to procure from the proper officers of the United States certified copies of all roll and records containing official evidence of the fact of the desertion of all persons who were citizens of this Commonwealth, and who were deprived of citizenship and disqualified by the said act of Congress of March 3, 1865; and to cause to be recorded and preserved, in books to be provided and kept for that purpose in his office, full and complete exemplifications of such roll and records, and to cause true copies to be made thereof, and furnished to the clerks of the several courts of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth, accurate duplicates or exemplifications of such rolls and records, embracing the names of all such disqualified persons as had their residence within the limits of said counties respectively, at the time of their being marked or designated as deserters; and it shall be the duty of the clerks of the several courts of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth to preserve in books to be kept for the purpose, all such copies and exemplifications of such rolls and records so furnished, and to allow access thereto, and furnish certified copies therefrom, on request, in like manner as in the case of their records of such courts.

SEC. 6. That a certified copy or extract of any such record, from the clerk of a court of quarter sessions of this Commonwealth, shall be prima facie evidence, before any election board, of the fact of desertion, and consequent disability and disqualification as an elector: Provided, That if any person shall wilfully use or present any false, fraudulent or forged paper, purporting to be a certified copy or extract as aforesaid, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished in like manner as is now provided in the second section of this act: And provided, however, That if, by the production of a certificate of his honorable discharge, it shall appear that such person, so offering to vote, was in the military service of the United States before and at the time of his being drafted into such service, and thereupon failing to report, or in case of the fact of desertion appearing, by certified copy of his company roll, if it shall appear that he was afterwards acquitted thereof and honorably discharged, such proof shall be received as evidence to disprove his said disqualification: And provided further, That if any person liable to be objected to as disqualified as aforesaid shall produce before any board of election officers, any false or fraudulent paper, purporting or pretended to be his honorable discharge from the Unite States service, he shall be deemed guilty of a forgery, and on conviction thereof, shall be punished as persons are now by law punishable for forgery.

SEC. 7. That it shall be the duty of the judges and inspectors of elections hereafter to be held in this Commonwealth, whenever the name of any person offering to them a ballot or ballots shall be found upon a certified copy, or extract, furnished from rolls, or records, by a clerk of a court of quarter sessions, marked as a deserter, or whenever any person shall be objected to as disqualified, as aforesaid, at any election, by any qualified voter, at the request or suggestion of such person, so offering a ballot, to examine such person on oath or affirmation, as to the fact appearing from such certificate or alleged against him by the elector so objecting, and if he deny it, as to his reasons therefor: Provided, however, That if any of his answers under such examination are false, such person shall be deemed guilty of the crime of perjury, and upon conviction thereof, he shall be punished, as persons are now punishable by law, for perjury.

SEC. 8. That it shall be the duty of the sheriffs in the several counties of this Commonwealth to insert in their proclamations of elections hereafter to be held the first sections of this act, with the preamble thereof; and upon conviction of any violation of the requirement of this section any sheriff shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor in office, and be punished in like manner as the offences prohibited by the second, third and fourth sections of this act are punishable.

SEC. 9. That in the trial of all cases arising under this act, it shall be the duty of the courts trying the same to inquire into and determine any question of fact, as to alleged desertion involved therein, upon proofs furnished by exemplifications or extracts from such rolls and records duly certified by the proper clerk of a court of quarter sessions, which are hereby made evidence thereof, and also from such proofs by parole as may be given in evidence by either party: Provided, That the provisions of this act, so far as applicable, shall apply to persons who voluntarily or without any kind of duress or constraint enlisted in the rebel service.

JAMES R. KELLEY,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

DAVID FLEMMING,
Speaker of the Senate

We present the law as passed by Congress, as follows:

SECTION 21. And be it further enacted, That, in addition to the other lawful penalties of the crime of desertion from the military or naval service, all persons who have deserted the military or naval service of the United States, who shall not return to said service, or report themselves to a provost marshal within sixty days after the proclamation hereinafter mentioned, shall be deemed and taken to have voluntarily reliquished and forefeited their rights of citizenship and their rights to become citizens; and such deserters shall be forever incapable of holding any office of trust or profit under the United States, or of exercising any rights of citizens thereof; and all persons who shall hereafter desert the military or naval service, and all persons who, being duly enrolled, shall depart the jurisdiction of the district in which he is enrolled, or go beyond the limits of the United States, with intent to avoid any draft into the military or naval service, duly ordered, shall be liable to the penalties of this section. And the President is hereby authorized and required forthwith, on the passage of this act, to issue his proclamation setting forth the provisions of this section, in which proclamation the President is requested to notify all deserters returning within sixty days as aforesaid that they shall be pardoned on condition of returning to their regiments and companies or to such other organizations as they may be assigned to, until they shall have served for a period of time equal to their original term of enlistment.

Release of Jeff. Davis-Vagary.

From the Times.

The Tribune of Monday says:—

"It is reported from Washington that a number of well-known gentlemen stand ready to give bail for Jeff. Davis in any required amount, but that the Government is disposed to release him, if at all, upon his parole."

Mr. Greely is one the "well known gentlemen" overflowing with sympathy for Jefferson Davis, and with living zeal chasing up Judge Underwood to offer "bail in any required amount."

Jefferson Davis was the head and front of a Rebellion, in the progress of which a quarter of a million of our sons fell, and for which the nation is carrying a debt of over three thousand millions of dollars. While Jefferson Davis was in his glory at Richmond, Union prisoners—soldiers—were dying in Rebel prisons of "pestilence and famine by thousands. Under the auspices of Jefferson Davis, and with the money of the Confederate government, agents were employed to introduce contagious diseases into our cities.—Under the same auspices, and with the same money, Confederate agents in Canada hatched conspiracies and raids to rob our banks, murder our citizens, burn our cities, and assassinate our President. These multiform and atrocious crimes were approved by Jefferson Davis. He has never even denied his responsibility or complicity in them. When any of the guilty agents were arrested they produced a commission from Jefferson Davis.

When this traitor in-chief was arrested, outraged humanity demanded his trial and punishment. But the Tribune objected! Mr. Greeley was opposed to the "death penalty." Mr. Greeley is a philanthropist! Mr. Greeley's sympathies warm to the man who struck a blow at the life of the republic; who deluged our country in blood; who sanctioned piracy, arson, and assassination! This craven, white-feathered spirit, from influential sources, occasioned delay, and delays end in a denial of justice. Jeff Davis should have been promptly tried, convicted and sentenced, after which, if the President had commuted the punishment on condition of his leaving the country forever, we should have been rid of a bad subject. And now, while Davis is living upon the fat of the land in Fortress Monroe, Mr. Greeley rushes to Washington to offer bail, so that not even punishment of the mildest character should be inflicted upon a man whose head in any other country, would have come off for any one of his many treasons.

It is a curious, if not an instructive fact, in the history of the Rebellion, that while Chief Justice Chase refuses to try, and Mr. Greeley objects to the punishment of the leading representative traitor, both refuse to restore the followers of Rebel leaders who desire to return to their allegiance, to their rights and privileges; and both persist, after peace has been proclaimed, in keeping the Union divided!

☞The New York Tribune says that all Congress can do is to make up an issue for the next election. The Tribune has already made an issue with Congress over Jeff. Davis.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE GREAT SOUTH WESTERN

CIRCUS,

THE MOST COMPLETE TRAVELLING EXHIBITION EVER ORGANIZED,

CONSISTING of a magnigcent ontfit, a troupe of Equestrians and Equestriennes, a corps of gymnasts and acrobats, a company of equestre-dramatists, comedians and pantomimists, a full complement of equerries, grooms, and chevaliers of the arena, and a tout ensemble brilliant beyond precedent, comprising in its comprehensive detail a starry galaxy, selected from the cremc-de-la-creme of the various amphitheatrical establishments of Europe and America. The stud of horses has been chosen with no less care, and in blood, beauty and training can defy rivalry. The trick horses and educated mules are marvels of equine sagacity, and the latter while falsifying the old adage of "stubborn as a mule," completly bewilder the spectator with humanlike intellect, and comprehensive facile power—in short, in every particular, the SOUTH WESTERN CIRCUS can lay claim to the title of the Hippo-Arenic Model of the Age.

The following gentlemen comprise the corps of Managers and Directors:

M. J. ROBINSON, Proprietor.
ALEX. ROBINSON, Manager.
DR. STEVENS, Treasurer.
WM. T. ODELL, Equestrian Director.

MADAME MARIE ROBINSON,

The sunbeam of the Cirque, the prima donna of Equestriennes, and a paragon of grace, beauty, feminine bravery and artistic excellence.

MISS NELLIE BLANCHE,

The accomplished American female rider.

MISS GRACE WATSON,

Trick rider and summersaultist, the wonder of the world.

THE DELEVANTE BROTHERS,

The motley delineators of the Grecian and Roman school of High Art, exemplified in their beautiful classic olympian melenge.

JOSH HART,

The great Dutch Clown, a merry offshoot of Momus, a fellow of infinite wit, and a genuine and original specimen of the Shakesperian Buffo.

Messrs Chas. Long, George Nixon, Henry Howe, John Norton, Bob Smith, Joe Ressides, Acrobats. Gymnasts and Amphitheatrical professors of la haute ecole.

MAGNIFCENT JOHNSTER,

The prodigy of the menage, a superb specimen of blood, symmetry and intelligence, will be introduced in his educated performances, by Madame Robinson, Dr. Stevens' troupe of educated

DOGS AND MONKEYS,

From Astley's Amphitheatre, London. The famous

TRICK MULES,

SANCHO, the spotted Spaniard, and PAUL PRY, unhesitatingly pronounced the wonders of the mule family, will be exhibited at each performance by the trainor, Mr. Charles Coveile.

SHELLBARK,

The incomprehensible Roan, etc., all exhibited under a spacious oriental pavilion amid strains of Orpheus like music by the double band of string instruments, led by the great director, Prof. Miller.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE

To canvass for the great book of 1866,

"THE SOUTH!"

A tour of its battle fields and ruined cities; a journey through the desolated States, and talks with the people,

BY J. T. TROWBRIDGE.

From personal observations and experience during months of southern travel.

The author has had letters of introduction from men in high standing, to the head of all Government departments in the south, civil and military. Whatever is known by these men of the sufferings of the past, present condition of things, as well as plans for the future, will be made known in this book. The great popularity of the author, and intense interest in the subject, combine to make this by far the greatest selling book before the public, while our very liberal inducements present a rare chance for agents to make money.

—Canned Strawberries, Pine Apples, Lima Beans, Peas, Peaches and Tomatoes, for sale at Lewis & Co's. family grocery.

—Our young friend G. W. Givin of Renova, will please accept our thanks, for a large and beautiful photograph of that place.

—Begins to look like a house again—the old stone building fitting up by the Fisher's for store rooms. It will be a good improvement.

—The Opposition or "Democratic party" of this county, will hold their nominating Convention in this place on the 26th inst.

—Almost a fire. The kitchen roof of Mr. Miles dwelling took fire from a burning chimney on Friday last. But little damage was done.

—On Monday next, the Great South Western Circus will exhibit, afternoon and evening, in West Huntingdon.—See advertisement in another column.

—Visit the Springs. Mr. Geissinger has the house, &c., in fine trim for the accommodation of visitors. We have no doubt he will do a fine business this summer. Go out and see.

—There will be preaching in the St. John's Episcopal Church, this place, on next Sabbath, in the morning at 11 o'clock, evening at 8 o'clock. The Rev. Mr. Speer, of Altoona will officiate.

—We are informed that a stranger from Lancaster attempted to shoot his wife at the Franklin House on Thursday last. The wife came to this place to get rid of him and his bad conduct. He was committed to jail.

—The Altoona Tribune, in speaking of our Base Ball Clubs, says: "Send nine of your best up this way, boys, or ask the first nine of the Mountain to go down." Pitch in "Social;"—ditto "Spartans." You too, "Young America."

—The Huntingdon Cornet Band is a great institution. They give free concerts two or three times a week in our most public streets. Such an institution is worth something to our citizens. E. Wilk. Thomas is giving the Band a finishing charm.

—We understand that Gibbonys' Woollen Factory in Jackson township, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday night of last week. It is supposed it was struck by lightning. Loss heavy—no insurance—the insurance having expired a few days previous.

—The boiler of the paper mill at Spang's Mills, this county, exploded on Friday afternoon, June 8. Mr. Joseph Whittaker, at one time a resident of this place, was seriously injured, having a couple of ribs broken, and receiving internal injuries. We have been unable to learn any further particulars.

—A great disappointment—the failure of the vegetable market at Lewis & Co's family grocery on Saturday last. Arrangements have been made to prevent disappointment in the future. Wednesday and Saturday mornings will be regular market mornings for the sale of fresh vegetables, canned fruit and vegetables, etc., etc.

—One pound of green copperas, dissolved in one quart of water, and poured down a sink drain, will effectually destroy the foulest smells. For water closets on board ships and steamboats, about hotels and other public places, there is nothing so nice to cleanse as simple green copperas.

—How to make a drunken man sober in one minute.—Give him acetate of ammonia, one and a half ounces, which will immediately sober him. It is a very cheap article, perfectly harmless, and is easily prepared in all good drug stores. If this preparation had been used in the crowd on Saturday night last, in front of the Methodist Church, it might have created less riotousness.

"THE BOYS IN BLUE."—Meeting of the Soldiers' Campaign League, on Friday, June 29th.—General Geary expected to be Present.—As required by the Constitution of the Soldiers' Union Campaign League, I hereby give notice that another meeting of the returned soldiers of Huntingdon county, will be held in the Court House, at Huntingdon, on Friday, the 29th inst., at 1 o'clock, P. M.

In making this announcement, I would direct the attention of all who are interested in the success of the League, and of the party, and the principles which it supports, to the action of the State Convention that assembled at Pittsburg on the 5th inst., and especially to the resolution calling upon the soldiers of Pennsylvania to organize in their respective counties, and to take care that the triumph of our arms be not fruitless. It was a gratification to the delegates to that Convention from Huntingdon, to inform their comrades from other parts of the State, that the soldiers here had taken a step towards organization three months before, and that we were in the field prepared for active and efficient service in the Campaign.

Our Campaign League was formed on the presumption that there would eventually be an association co-extensive with our Commonwealth, and that anticipation is not to be disappointed. The Chairman of the State Convention was given authority to appoint a Soldiers' State Central Committee, and it is to be hoped that in a few days the "National Union of the Boys in Blue" will be completely organized.

General Geary has been consulted in regard to being present at our next meeting, and has consented, provided other engagements do not prevent. If he decides to come announcement will be made next week.

MILTON S. LYTLE,
President.

NOTICE TO REGIMENTAL COMMANDERS.—Late commanders of Regiments of the 14th military district, composed of the following counties, to wit: Juniata, Mifflin, Huntingdon, Centre and Clearfield, will please forward to me at once, the name and post office address of all the Color-bearers and guards, in their respective counties, to enable me to forward to them passes on the Railroads to Philadelphia and return, that they may be present to bear once more their old flags, at the Flag Presentation ceremony, on the 4th of July, in Philadelphia.

B. X. BLAIR, Capt.,
Chairman of the Com. of Transportation for the 14th Military District.

Attempt to Rob.

As Porter Thompson, of this county, was returning from the neighboring county of Perry, where he had been to purchase horses, an attempt was made to rob him. The affair occurred about 10 o'clock on Friday evening near the base of the Tuscarora mountain, on the Juniata side. The highwayman came out of the woods and caught Mr. Thomson's horse by the bridle and demanded "his money or his life." "That," said Mr Thompson, "remains to be tested," at the same time jumping out of the buggy, and with a birch billy, which he happened to have in his possession, succeeded in scaring the rascal off. It seems that the country is full of all kinds of villains, and persons whose business requires them to travel after night should go well armed.—Mifflintown Sentinel, June 13.

Picnics.

This pleasant, popular and profitable mode of enjoyment is not on the wane. People can find much true pleasure in the grand old woods, mingling with nature, admiring her beauties, and seeking enjoyment amid her shady bowers. The elder folk should seek more such enjoyment, giving their decrepid limbs to the pure summer air, thus gaining strength for time to come not going in damp weather, however.

Accident.

Dr. G. W. Hoover was thrown out of his sulky on Sunday last, a short distance above Minehart's run, while on a professional visit, and seriously hurt His head was badly cut, his legs also bruised and cut, and it is feared he may have sustained internal injuries. He was found on the road, carried to a house, and Dr. Van Valzah sent for, who dressed his wounds.—Lewistown Gazette 13*th, inst.*

Improved Washing Machine.

One of the most complete machines for washing clothes has just been invented by John S. Lash, Esq., of Philadelphia, who has recently obtained a patent for it. It is highly ingenious, although simple in construction. What is still better, it is within the reach of every housekeeper, costing as it does, only five dollars. For further particulars, we refer the reader to the advertisement in another column. 4t

Highway Robbery.

Mr. Thos. M. Kelly, tax-collector of Cromwell township, was passing thro' the bridge near Orbisonia, on his way home, on last Friday evening, (June 8,) about dusk, he was appealed to by a man lying on the floor of the bridge for assistance. Mr. Kelly alighted from his horse to aid the supposed sick man, when the scoundrel gave the signal, and two other ruffians rushed upon Mr. Kelly from their hiding places, beat, dangerously stabbed and robbed him of between $300 and $400. The highwaymen then fled and have not yet been arrested.—Monitor.

DIED,

On the 3d inst., of pleurisy, at her residence, in Cromwell township, Mrs. LYDIA IRWIN, in the 85th year of her age.

At Van Wert, Ohio, on the 23d ult., of spotted fever, ULYSSES OSCAR, son of Samuel S. and Margaret Hackedorn, formerly of Mt. Udion, aged 3 years, 1 month and 15 days.

On the 12th inst., Mr. ELEANOR ELIZABETH STINE, daughter of John and Jane Parke, formerly of this place, aged 52 years, 10 months, and 12 days.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

HORACE GREELEY'S
HISTORY OF THE WAR,
"THE AMERICAN CONFLICT."

Upwards of 100,000 Copies Sold.

The high character of this work has gained for it among the distinguished men and leading journals of all parties, a reputation accorded to no other History of

THE GREAT CIVIL WAR.

As a complete, lucid, impartial and authentic record of events, marked throughout by great care and discrimination, it has no rival.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

It is of course a history from a standpoint of observation far distant from our own, and from that of the Democracy generally; but it is marked by much less prejudice, and is disfigured by far less partisan feeling, than most of our friends would imagine. It contains a vast amount of information, and is altogether superior to any volume on the subject that has yet appeared.

From the North American Review.

He writes without passion, making due allowance for human nature in the South as well as the North.

From the New York Daily News.

Joshua R. Giddings, J. T. Headley, J. S. C. Abbott, Lossing and Horace Greeley have all published the first parts of a history of the war; but of these, no one has been so successful as that of Mr Greeley, nor is worthy the same attention.

From the (London) Westminster Review.

It is temperate, and gives way to no vituperation, although thoroughly in earnest, and if we may admire the industry which has enabled the editor of the leading newspaper in America to do this at such a time, we may still more admire the spirit of fairness and directness which characterize this very valuable work.

From the New York World.

MR. GREELEY AS A HISTORIAN.—He has few equals as a writer of vigorous English. He is terse, racy, direct, going straight to the heart of the subject as it presents itself to his view, hitting it off occasionally by a dash of grotesque humor, but more frequently irradiating it with gleams of shrewd, homely sense.

From the Boston Pilot.

We recommend the perusal of "The American Conflict" to those who do not intend merely to talk about matters and things, but who wish to speak rationally and from conviction.

HUNTINGDON, PA.

Flavor of Fruit Improved by Pruning.

An article in the Journal of Horticulture, has the following very judicious remarks on the propriety of thinning fruit:

The flavor of fruit, barring extreme sunless seasons, is entirely under the control of the gardener. A clever man can command flavor; a dull man, when he finds his fruit flavorless, makes idle excuses, which should never be listened to. If a tree trained to a wall be allowed to ripen, say ten dozen of fruit, when five or six dozen only should have been left, they, although they may be of a fair size and color, suffer in flavor to an extent scarcely credible.

How often has the gardener had occasion to complain of his pears not being good, although produced on fine trees trained against walls. He complains of the season; but it is in most cases owing to the trees being allowed to bear just double the number they ought to have done.

The following ought to be inscribed on every wall, and in every fruit and orchard house.

By thinning you make indifferent fruit good. By crowding you make fruit bad. If very fine and high flavored fruit be wished for a tree capable of bearing three dozen of medium sized peaches should be allowed to bear twelve or fifteen. This thinning is terrible work for the amateur. It is like drawing a tooth, and every fruit that falls to the ground creates a pang; but it must be done. A small, sharp pen knife is the best instrument to employ, and is much better than tearing off the fruit with the finger and thumb. A well formed peach or nectarine tree, be it bush or pyramid, with its fruit properly thinned and nearly ripe, is one of the most beautiful articles the skill of the cultivator can produce.

Let any one who is raising fruit try the experiment this season, by thinning the fruit on a single tree of apple, peaches, pears, plums, &c., where the fruit is too abundant, and he will next year treat all his trees, in the same way.

A few Hints.

Tomatoes, unless already done, can now be set out with tolerable safety. Should cool nights, likely to bring frost, come, the plants should be covered with old paper, boxes or flower pots. Little is gained by early transplanting. A single night may retard the grown for two weeks, and put them behind those set out a week or ten days later.

Egg plants do generally better by not being set out before the first of June. If the season is very favorable the last week in May can be ventured on. There is no plant so sensitive of cool nights as this. As soon as the weather becomes hot, both the Egg and Tomato plants should be mulched.

The Yellow Radish for summer use can now be planted. This variety seems to do better than any other for the very warm weather.

Now is the time to destroy the steel colored bug on the young grape buds. The surest way is to go over the vines every morning for a week or ten days and pinch them to death. They can now be easily seen. One must be expert in catching them, as sometimes they fly, but generally leap away if the branch is shaken. They eat in their present form, the fruit buds, destroying them sometimes entirely; while their progeny, in the shape of a small dark worm, feed upon the leaves, if let alone will in some seasons seriously damage the crop. They select the older vines. We have never seen any upon vines under five years old.

Radishes sown around cantelope hills will protect the young plant from the depredations of the striped bug. The insect prefers the radish leaf to the cantelope.

A good dose of salt helps the product of the Asparagus bed, and at the same time destroys all grass and weeds, otherwise so very troublesome.

Violets should be transplanted in shady places as soon as summer weather sets in.

Flower seeds should now be in the ground. The spring has been so cool up to within a few days that seed was better out than in the ground.

Evergreen trees, hedges and young fruit trees should be carefully forked around and all grass removed. Trees set out this spring should be well mulched.

Curled Lettuce heads and stands summer weather much better than the Cabbage Lettuce, which is the best for hotbeds and early out door planting.

Okra may be planted from now to the end of the month. Plant in drills, and thin out to about a foot apart. Drills about two and a half feet.

NO FENCES IN GERMANY.—The Secretary of the Ohio Agricultural Society has been travelling in Germany. Speaking of the country near Dresden he says; "Every foot of the land not in forest is cultivated. There are no fences; the field is plowed up to the roadside, and fruits and flowers are grown by every roadside that I have traveled; no one disturbs them. The cattle, sheep, and swine are kept in the stables, or, if taken out, are under the charge of a shepherd or herdsman. Here and there dotted over the landscape, we saw sheep in pasture, but have seen no cattle or swine running above loose. The genus "loafer" is unknown here."

THE FIRST GRAPE GROWER.—The earliest account of the cultivation of the vine is found in Genesis ix, 20: "And Noah began to be a husbandman and planted a vineyard." We are not informed as to the kind or quality of the grapes he planted, but we have abundant testimony that they make good wine in which the alcoholic element was amply developed, as Noah's own testings of the qualities showed. The country in which Noah resided is supposed to be Armonia, a land still famed for its grapes and wine.

PROF. H. M'ENTYRE'S GREAT REMEDY,

THE

INDIAN COMPOUND

Internal and External Medicine,

WILL CURE:

☞ Diarrhœa, Bloody Flux in one day,
☞ Headache and Earache in three minutes.
☞ Toothache in one minute.
☞ Neuralgia in five minutes,
☞ Sprains in twenty minutes,
☞ Sore Throat in ten minutes,
☞ Cholic and Cramp in five minutes,
☞ Rheumatism in one day,
☞ Pain in the Back or Side in ten minutes,
☞ Bad Coughs or Colds in one day,
☞ Fever and Ague in one day.
☞ Cures Deafness, Asthma, Piles,
☞ Bronchitis Affections, Dyspepsia,
☞ Inflammation of the Kidneys, Erysipelas,
☞ Liver Complaint and Palpitation of the Heart.

Keep it in your Families—Sickness comes when least expected.

I propose to check, and effectually dissipate more ache and pain, and to accomplish more perfect equilibrium of all the circulating fluids in the human system, than can be effected by any other, or all other methods of medical aid in the same space of time.

THIS POPULAR REMEDY is fast coming into use, for the fact that I cure, free of charge, all these complaints whenever there is an opportunity to do so. As soon as it is applied it almost miraculously kills the pain. I do not ask you to buy before you are certain of its efficiency. If you have an ache or pain, it is warranted to do all it purports on the label.

I do not propose to cure every disease—only a class named by my directions. My liniment operates on chemical and electric principles, and is, therefore, applicable, to the cure or natural restorative of all organic derangement arising from an improper circulation of the nerve vital fluids.

Prof. J. H. McEntyre's INDIAN COMPOUND acts directly on the absorbents, reducing glandular and other swellings in incredible short time, without any possible danger from its use under any possible circumstances.

This is an internal and external medicine—composed of roots, herbs and barks, such as our forefathers used.—There is a bountiful supply on earth to cure all complaints if we only know what they were.

This has been a great study with the Medical Faculty for many years, to find out the kinds best adapted to the above complaints—how to put them together, and what proportions to use.

STAR MAGIC LINIMENT.

$1000 REWARD will be paid for any medicine that excels this for the following diseases:

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Spinal Affections, Contracted Joints, Cholic Pains, Pains in Side or Back, Toothache, Headache, Sprains, Sore Throat, Cuts, Bruises, Burns, and all Diseases of the Muscles, Skin and Glands.

This is an Internal and External Medicine, composed of Roots, Herbs and Barks such as our forefathers used.—There is a bountiful supply on the earth to cure all complaints, if we only knew what they were. This has been a subject for constant study with the Medical Faculty for a great many years, to find out the kinds best adapted to the above complaints—how to put them together, and what portions to use.

This wonderful remedy needs no recommendation save the results which invariably follow its application.

☞ This popular remedy is fast coming into use from the fact that it gives good satisfaction.

☞ PHYSICIANS are invited to test its efficacy in all cases of Rheumatism, Affections of the Spinal Column, and all Diseases of the Skin, Muscles and Glands. It has been used in thousands of instances under the personal supervision of the Inventors, and has never disappointed their expectations. All we ask for it is a trial—experimental proof—not the testimony of the men of straw, are the vouchers we desire to present to the public.

It would be well for many now lying in beds of torture, if these facts could reach their sick chambers. It is more important to them than to the inventors that this should be the case. "Truth is mighty and must prevail."

☞ Keep it in your family, for sickness comes when you least expect it.

This head or Wrapper is constructed of Tin or Zinc, with sliding band and bolts, in connection with the centre bolt passing thro' the handle, holding it secure.

The article to which we call your attention is very simple, light and strong, weighing but SEVEN OUNCES.

The farming community have long needed an article of this character; and the high price of Brooms, together with the simplicity, durability, and practical utility of this invention, makes it more saleable than any other art icle ever introduced.

☞ We offer borough, township, and family rights for sale on reasonable terms, in the county of Huntingdon.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

TO THE LADIES.—Do you really intend to cease wearing the beautiful styles now so prevalent, or dress less elegantly, because the rebel Jeff. Davis, was captured in Fashionable Female attire? One moment's calm reflection will surely serve to change your rash resolve. The angels had too much good sense to lay aside their pure chaste robes of white, because they had for a time served to hide the deformities of that Prince of Rebels, the Devil. Can you err in following the example of Angels? Then having made up your minds that you will continue to dress tastefully regardless of rebel acts, do not forget to call at the store of the subscribers, who will be happy at all times to furnish you with such articles of dress as you may desire. Urge your fathers, husbands, brothers, neighbors and children to visit the same store. They can here be suited in good articles of Boots, Shoes, Clothing Material, Hats, Caps, Queensware and a general assortment of Groceries, on as reasonable terms as at any House in town. Store on Southeast corner of the Diamond, Huntingdon, Pa.

BITTER WINE OF IRON.

An exquisite impregnation of dry Spanish Wine with the activity of Calisaya Bark, and the most energetic of all the ferruginous salts, Citrate of Magnetic Oxide of Iron. It has a vinous flavor, very grateful to the palate, is without chalybeate taste and will not discolor the teeth.

It excites languid appetite, gives zest to food, improves digestion, increases the strength, steadies the circulation, takes off muscular flabbiness, removes the pallor of debility, gives firmness and precision to the actions of the nervous system, with power to endure fatigue and resist disease.

Magnetic Citrate of Iron is new and peculiar, differing from the ordinary Soluble Citrate, in containing an equivalent of Protoxide of Iron, in place of the Ammonia. It is neutral, tasteless, without astringency, as prompt and energetic as the Chloride, and unlike that, induces no local inflammatory action or headache.

Calisaya Bark is pre-eminent among vegetable tonics, has no equal as a strengthener, or restorative, nor rival as an anti-periodic.

Retails in $1 and $2 bottles. Quarts and Gallons for dispensing. O. S. HUBBELL, Apothecary,
